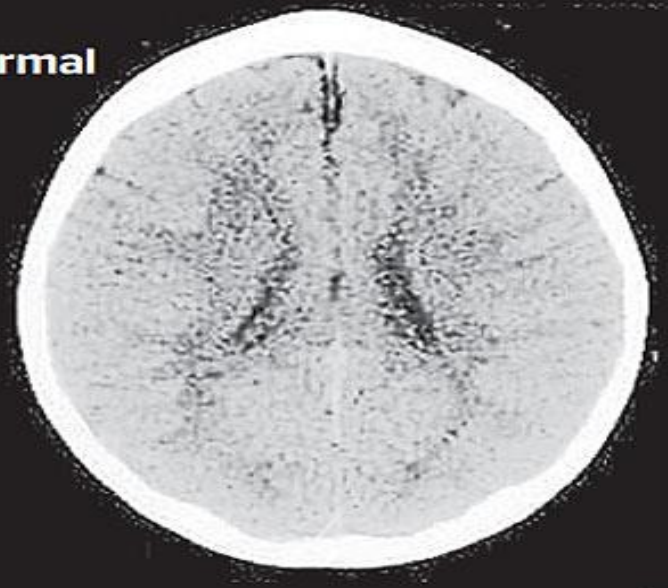
HOW STRESS CHANGES A CHILD'S BRAIN

3-YEAR-OLD CHILDREN

Normal



Extreme neglect

- Prolonged exposure to trauma triggers physiological changes in the brain.
- Neural circuits are disrupted, causing changes in the hippocampus, the brain's memory and emotional centre.
- This can cause brain shrinkage, problems with memory, learning and behaviour.
- A child does not learn to regulate emotions when living in state of constant stress.
- Associated with greater risk of chronic disease and mental health problems in adulthood.

The Heckman Equation

"One dollar spent in the early years is estimated to save between $3 and $9 in future spending on health, social and justice services."
