Safeguarding and what it means in relation to HMCTS

HMCTS want to make sure staff and service users have a safe and suitable environment to work in or visit. We sometimes see people in situations where they m an experie nd the de r.

What is 'safeguarding' and why is it important to us?

Safeguarding means protecting a citizen's health, wellbeing and human rights; enabling them to live free from harm, abuse and neglect. It is an integral part of providing high-quality health care. Safeguarding children, young people and adults is a collective responsibility.

We also want to make sure our vulnerable employees are safe when they're not at work and users remain safe after they've used our services.

We can't fix every situation, but we can help. Safeguarding is doing something to protect vulnerable groups of people from abuse and neglect which goes beyond an immediate response.
